Testing Principles

Test Principle number 6 of 7:

Testing is context dependent.

There is no one way of performing testing, it depends on the context.

No such thing is called best practice on how to perform testing.

The context is affected by the software itself, time, budget, team maturity, skills … etc.